A Monthly Update On Karl Weber
Expressly For The American Farm Community
And The Corporations That Support It

Lake Erie Speedway Is Next On Schedule

Lake Erie, PA ---
Karl Weber returns to Lake Erie Speedway after two successful test sessions to race in the Plyler Overhead Door 75, the main event on July 2nd. Weber has tested very well at this 3/8th Mile NASCAR Track and actually did a 'test-race' earlier in the month. After a full month of rain outs Weber is looking forward to qualification and race. "I'm ready, that's for sure," said Weber, "and am confident that we can start up front and finish well."

Weber Truly Believes In Legacy Project Message

Ambia, IN ---
Karl Weber (14) knows what he wants in life. Of course he is committed to racing but he will tell anyone within earshot that he wants to farm a large operation just like his parents. "I'm a farmer first and a racer second," says the teen, "and I want to take The Legacy Project message to family farm operations wherever I race."
The teen racer is home-schooled on the Weber Farm grounds and is an A-student in his studies. The Weber Farm operates 12,000-acres in Northeast Indiana and Karl plays an active role.

Tony Blanchard: Team Manager Coaching Future Stars

Charlotte, NC ---
In the world of stock car racing it is rare for an individual to have an unscathed reputation. Tony Blanchard is one of those unique people and he is Karl Weber's coach and team manager. He has become known among the 'insider' racing circles as one of the top crew chiefs in the industry for working with and coaching young race car drivers. He is especially well known for his work with Joey Logano as Joey's crew chief during his formative years in NASCAR development series.
Blanchard manages virtually every aspect of the planning for Karl Weber's racing effort. He actively coaches Karl on his 'racecraft'; tunes and adjusts his chassis and determines the best tracks on which to race. His involvement with The Flying Farmer is crucial in the growth of a kart champion who is moving into the upper ranks of motorsports.

A Look At The Car The Chassis

Every Late Model Stock Car has the cage-like chassis as it's foundation. Karl Weber's race car uses Howe Racing's Perimeter Oval Chassis which is one of the best in the racing industry. The chassis is symmetrical from the centerline and can be built slightly offset. The frame rails are 58" wide and made with 2" x 3" 11 gauge tubing. The chassis has 4 Convex Door Rails which provide safety for the driver as well as rigidity. All of the bodywork, shock absorbers and suspension pieces are attached to this basic chassis.

Weber Courting Farm Industry With Breakthrough Promotion

Ambia, Indiana ---
"I want to gather the best agriculture companies into one promotion program and take a positive message to the country about the importance of the US farm," says Karl Weber. "I think that it is crucial for America to know that the farm community remains as one of this nation's most valuable assets and that it is the heart of this country".
